

General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR)

The General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) is the European data protection regulation adopted by the EU Commission to replace the EU Data Protection Directive, also known as Directive 95/46/EC. The GDPR applies to both individuals and businesses and regulates the way in which personal data of citizens in the European Union should be handled.

Argus Spectrum International - GDPR Privacy Statement

Argus Spectrum International is committed to ensuring your privacy is protected. Should we ask you to provide information by which you can be identified you can be assured that it will only be used in accordance with this policy.

In order to prevent unauthorised access or disclosure, we employ physical, electronic and managerial procedures to safeguard and secure the information we collect from you.

Any information that you give us will be treated with the utmost care, respect and security. It will not be used in ways to which you have not consented. If you consent, from time to time Argus Spectrum International may use your registration details to provide you with information about other products and services that may be of interest to you.

We will not sell or lease your personal information to third parties unless we have your permission or are required by law to do so.

Argus Spectrum International cookies do not store any personally identifiable information and cannot harm your computer. Users wanting more control over their use of our online services can adjust their browser settings accordingly. However, choosing to disable, reject or block our cookies may result in parts of our online services/website not functioning as expected.

Any changes we may make to our GDPR privacy policy will be detailed on this page and, where appropriate, notified to you by e-mail.

GDPR Statement issued March 2020

A handwritten signature in blue ink, enclosed in a blue oval. The signature appears to be "Sergey Levtchouk".

Sergey Levtchouk
General Director
Argus Spectrum International
March 2020